

MAP OF FOOD INSECURITY IN HAITI

Note: 3 aspects only of food insecurity were used: poverty, infant malnutrition and occurrence of natural disasters. Using more factors and/or giving them different weights gives different maps. Either way, the mapping exercise is somehow subjective as discussions and a large consensus on the best approach have not yet taken place. CNSA seems interested to coordinate that discussion. Vulnerability is not shown at communal level despite diversity of situations because malnutrition and disaster risk data exist only at departmental level.

- Short-term responses; increased food distributions to targeted families through existing distribution networks and Cash for Work and/or Food for Work Programs putting money/food in peoples pockets.
- Mid-Term responses; increased development programs focused on food production inputs (seed, tools, etc) and food production infrastructure (irrigation rehab, rural roads, etc).
